

Non-Aggression Pact With Russia May Top Agenda Of Big Three

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP)—The Big Three foreign ministers carried on their study of global cold war problems today with the question of whether to offer Russia a sweeping non-aggression pact at the top of the agenda.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault scheduled their crucial second day huddle in the grey old Foreign Office off Downing St.

Some Touchy Problems

In addition to the non-aggression pact, the ministers faced decisions on several other touchy problems as they neared the halfway mark of their three-day session. Among these were:

1. An urgent British proposal to bring an Israel attack on three border Jordan villages before the United Nations Security Council. Fifty-six Arabs reportedly were killed in the assault which Britain blasted Friday as "apparently calculated."

2. Practical means of allaying Yugoslav anger over Trieste in view of the ministers' reported agreement Friday night to stand by the British-American announcement that Italy would be given Zone A of that strategic territory. The ministers also must put finishing touches on drafts of British,

French and American notes to the Soviet Union calling for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting Nov. 9 at Lugano, Switzerland, to discuss a final Austrian settlement and German unification. These drafts are a five-power parity with Communist China sitting in—as proposed by Russia last month—could await a Korean settlement.

Diplomats Skeptical

A non-aggression pact offer to guaranteed Russia's security in return for a green light on their reunification and looking toward free elections throughout Germany could be made in these notes.

The Big Three discussed the proposal Friday but reportedly postponed a decision when West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer objected to the offer being made at this time. Adenauer expressed fear that it would delay further French ratification of the proposed six-nation European Defense Community (EDC) treaty. The EDC provides for limited rearmament of Germany.

Although the idea of such a pact first broached by Britain's Prime Minister Churchill has gained some favor with Dulles and Bidault, recent dispatches from Moscow said Western diplomats were skeptical about its reception by the Kremlin.

Strike Front Quiet At Kingsford Plant; Scufflers In Court

IRON MOUNTAIN (AP)—All was quiet on the Kingsford Chemical Co. strike front today. But two court actions stemming from picket line scuffles were hanging fire.

The plant, which normally does not operate on Saturday, was closed.

When the factory reopens Monday state police again are expected to patrol the gates to guard against further violence.

junction Violated

Later Monday the attorney general's office plans to go into circuit court here for a contempt order against Roland Tremaine, one of the Kingsford strikers.

Attorney General Frank G. Millard said in Lansing yesterday that Tremaine had subjected himself to the contempt charge by his picket line activities.

Tremaine and 22 other union men were enjoined several weeks ago by Dickinson County Circuit court from obstructing streets, highways and railway spurs in the plant vicinity.

In addition, Tremaine and Arthur H. Dahl are under $25 bond pending trial on disorderly conduct charges. Tremaine was accused of swinging a club at a non-striker's car. Dahl, an AFL Teamsters Union member and strike sympathizer, was accused of kicking in the door of another car.

One Woman Hurt

Each posted the $25 bond in municipal court yesterday. The two were ordered to reappear later at an unspecified date.

Millard said he would seek the contempt warrant without waiting for Dickinson County prosecutor John V. Zarardi to handle the case.

"We can't sit idly by and let people get hurt," he asserted.

One woman was injured in a picket line disturbance yesterday. But in general the action was more restrained than on Thursday.

Witnesses Promise To Tell All About Army's Radar Spies

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) summoned into closed hearings today three witnesses who reportedly were named by an Army employee said to have promised to "tell all" about a radar spy ring.

McCarthy called a special Saturday session of his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, saying it was most important to question the trio following the Army employee's testimony Friday concerning an alleged espionage ring at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Name Kept Secret

Today's witnesses are understood to include present and former employees at Ft. Monmouth.

An indication of the importance McCarthy attached to today's session was his indefinitely deferring a visit to the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., to question

Prisoners Turn Backs On Reds

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Bitter squabbles flared between Allied and Communist officers today as all but 9 of 430 Chinese war prisoners defiantly turned their backs on Reds, who persuaded only 10 of 500 to return in the first day of the explanations Thursday.

There will be no explanations Sunday under Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission (NNRC) rules.

The dramatic Allied-Communist tug of war reached fevered pitch today, not only in the clashes between the prisoners and their Red explainers—but between U. N. command and Red observers.

A bitter flareup, punctuated by kicks and curses, flamed over one anti-Red Chinese POW who was forced to listen to Communist explainers for almost three hours.

Despite the absence of a commitment from farm bureau farmers, members of the tour committee said they believed that a large majority of farms in the Midwest, as well as in southern states, want a continuation of present rigid, 90 per cent parity supports.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be fair to farmers in relations to prices they pay.

Rep. Hoeven, Iowa Republican on the committee, said at the close of a hearing at Des Moines Friday that he was confident the group would vote to extend the 90 per cent supports at the next session of Congress unless something better is offered.

No Fraud Found In McCarthy's Campaign Tricks

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Monroney (D-Oklahoma) said today that Atty. Gen. Brownell, in finding Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) broke no fraud or election laws, "is giving a clean bill to all the ugly features of one of the dirtiest political campaigns in recent history."

Brownell announced Friday that, after looking into questions raised by a Senate subcommittee, the Justice Department found no evidence of fraud or election law violations in McCarthy's personal finances or activities in the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign.

Income Investigated

While McCarthy's income is still under investigation by the treasury, Brownell said, the Justice Department is bowing out of the matter. He said it would make no further inquiry and would seek no grand jury action.

Similarly cleared was former Sen. William Benton (D-Conn.), whom McCarthy had accused of campaign fund irregularities. Benton had sought to have McCarthy ousted from the Senate.

Monroney was chairman of the Senate elections subcommittee when, in early 1951, it investigated the 1950 Maryland campaign in which McCarthy helped Republicans. Sen. John Marshall Butler unseated the Democratic incumbent, Millard Tydings. The subcommittee report called the campaign a "despicable back street type."

Expense Concealed

"The attorney general is giving a clean bill to an election campaign that involved the concealment of large sums of money that were spent, a fake composite photograph of Sen. Tydings and Earl Browder (former Communist leader) and all of the other ugly features of one of the dirtiest political campaigns in recent history."

The subcommittee filed another report last Jan. 2, before the Republicans took office, and questioned among other things whether McCarthy had speculated in commodities with funds raised for his anti-Communist campaign.

Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.) had become subcommittee chairman by then, with Sen. Hendrickson (R-N.J.) and Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz.) as members. None of the three was reached immediately for comment on Brownell's announcement.

The attorney general's findings are likely to intensify McCarthy's controversial place in next year's congressional campaign.

By JAMES A. O. CROWE

GRAYLING (AP)—The State Conservation Commission has handed Atty. Gen. Frank G. Millard a hot potato—the decision as to when the names of game law violators should become public property.

The hot potato was thrown to Millard by the commission at a meeting at Higgins Lake. The commission voted to permit conservation officers and other staff members to release the names as soon as Millard will let them.

No Wait For Warrants

An informal opinion by Millard's subordinates held last week that officers had to wait until the courts issued warrants.

Commissioner Joseph P. Rahilly of Newberry objected that the warrant often is not issued for days and sometimes not until the day of the trial. He said officers in the Upper Peninsula and the northern Lower Peninsula have been releasing the names on arrest for years. He wants officers in the southern Lower Peninsula to do the same thing.

The commission argued longest over the request of the Michigan Union Conservation Clubs for a list of violators' names. The commissioners feared the cost and held that their responsibility ended with making official reports available.

Budget Boosted

They finally agreed to try out a weekly list until the end of the year.

The commission approved a budget of $13,738,437 to run the department in the 1954-55 fiscal year, compared to the present $12,349,767 budget.

Approved was Eddy's appointment of Marshall R. Joy of Mt. Pleasant, an official of the Brazos Oil and Gas Co., to the State Oil Advisory Board.

Name Kept Secret

The senator did not identify the employee, saying only that he is an "important employee" of the Ft. Monmouth laboratories. McCarthy told newsmen:

"We have placed the witness in the protective custody of this committee and I wish you would not, if you know his name, publish it, because he is afraid of his own personal safety, in fact his life and the safety of his family."

McCarthy, asserting he is sending a transcript of the subcommittee testimony to the FBI, declared that the witness "talked about members of the Rosenberg spy ring and said he knew Rosenberg very well."

The development came after a week of closed hearings here in the McCarthy group's probe of possible espionage at Ft. Monmouth, where 10 civilian employees reportedly have been suspended recently for security reasons.

Butcher Knife Stolen

Assigned to a cow barn, Pawnessing told his captors that he stole the big, sharp butcher knife from the farm kitchen and surprised Pfau at his desk. Ramming the blade against the guard's stomach, the convict said he told him: "Come on, we're going to Muskegon."

Pfau reported all was well at 1 a. m. But when he failed to report again as scheduled an alarm was sounded. Investigators found Pawnessing's note in the farm office.

State police were alerted, particularly the fifth Paw Paw convict who was wounded in the gunfire that ended a screaming, 90-mile-an-hour chase three miles north of Fruitport, between Grand Rapids and Muskegon.

Bullets Blast Tire

The convict took the guard's car for his escape. Several pistol bullets were pumped into it before police blew down the left wheel tires with shotguns.

The convict was shot in the stomach, the guard in the leg, and the police officer in the head.

President Discards Special Railway Car

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The presidential railroad car seems headed in the same direction as the presidential yacht before it—into mothballs for economy's sake.

President Eisenhower, who travels mostly by air, has used the government-owned "U. S. Car No. 1," formerly called the "Ferdinand and Magellan"—only once in three rail trips since his Jan. 20 inauguration.

Wednesday night for Defiance, Ohio, he rode in a Baltimore & Ohio three-bedroom business car assigned to the road's traffic vice president.

Officials said this saved the government the price of 10 first-class fares—the charge for deadheading back to its base an empty car used on a one-way trip. The President used the train only to go to Ohio and flew back. But the railroad assumed the cost of deadheading its own car.

Under Korean law, the Assembly must approve the arrest of its members.

County Budget Awaits Tax Millage Decision

The Delta County Board of Supervisors Friday postponed detailed discussion of the county's 1954 budget until Wednesday at 7 in the Courthouse, where the Board expects to know the state tax commission's decision on a county appeal to get more millage than the Delta County Tax Allocation Board allotted it last May.

The Board, which Friday morning heard a letter from the County Road Commission saying county bridges were in such "deplorable" condition a major accident could be expected, decided something should be worked out and money should be made available to meet this situation.

The supervisors referred the Road Commission letter to its committee on roads and bridges, asking the committee to meet with the Road Commission and formulate a plan to present to the Board of Supervisors when it meets in January.

Discuss State Ass'n
Two items of the '54 budget received tentative approval. Around one of these a $20.00 appropriation for dues to the Michigan State Association of Supervisors, a flurry of discussion developed.

Carl B. Johnson, Escanaba, objected strenuously to the appropriation. "We are just a bunch of suckers that we keep on supporting them," he declared. "I think that's just money thrown away."

Johnson said the organization didn't support Delta County in a proposal it sponsored last spring. (This was apparently a reference to Delta County's proposal to reorganize county government to provide a strong county executive.) The supervisor from Escanaba also said the state association never accomplishes any good for the people of Michigan.

Supervisor Chester Fpeak of Ford River Township came to the defense of the state association, asserting that it helps keep the people informed. Supervisor Guy Knutson of Escanaba said he thinks the state association is valuable.

Chairman Harold Gustafson of Ensign said the proposal Delta County advanced to the state association was for a major change and it could not be expected that complete support would be gained for it right away. He also urged that more Delta County supervisors go to the annual meeting of the state association, saying this would make membership worth more to the county.

"If something good comes out of it I'm not against it," Supervisor Johnson decided.

Accept Finance Report

The supervisors accepted the finance committee's recommendation to put the dues to the association in the 1954 budget.

Approved and placed in the 1954 budget, on the finance committee's recommendation, was a request from the U. P. Development Bureau for $100.00 for the Bureau's 1954 budget.

The Board then decided simply to accept and place on file further recommendations of the finance committee, and to approve or disapprove them when the Board considers the full 1954 budget.

Treated in this manner were the following recommendations:

To give the U. P. Child Guidance Center $400.00 toward its 1954 work.

To give the Michigan Children's Aid Society $400.00 toward its 1954 work.

In other action, the Board:

Declined to pay a $13.00 bill from the city of Escanaba for dogs which the city disposed of for township owners. The Board advised the city to collect the $1.00 fee from township owners.

Sheep Claim Refused

Appointed Hagle Quarnstrom, superintendent of county schools, to be Delta County civil defense director. A $200.00 appropriation for civil defense is already in the budget.

Declined a claim from Frank Barron, Flat Rock sheep farmer, for $404.70. Depredations of stray dogs caused him to lose 20 lambs and two ewes, Barron claimed.

The finance committee gave three reasons why it was declining the claim: because a justice of the peace was unable to follow the usual procedure of investigating the claim; because of the lapse of time between the incident and the filing of the claim; and because it was uncertain it was actually dogs which killed the animals.

On a request from Bichler Bros. of Escanaba, sand, stone and gravel firm, to buy three forties and part of another forty adjoining the Delta Convalescent Home, the Board asked H. W. Gasman, manager of Bichler Bros., and County Road Engineer William Karas to draw plans for a detailed description of the property. It asked Gasman and Karas to submit this plan to the Board's committee on roads and bridges in ample time for study and report at the Board's meeting in January.

A proposal to give Michigan State College $4,000.00 per year to maintain a third extension agent in Delta County will be considered when the full budget is considered, the Board decided. There are now three extension agents in the county, but the college is removing one as an economy measure.

Russell Horwood, U. P. extension supervisor from Chatham, spoke to the Board in support of the $4,000.00 appropriation.

School Finance Plans Discussed

Possible methods of obtaining additional revenue for school districts in Delta County were discussed last night at a meeting of the Delta County School Board in the Kipling School with Walter VanDeWeghe presiding.

Although no action was taken the discussion indicated the school board members from township school districts believe there are two possible solutions that would assist both the schools and the county in obtaining additional revenue. They are:

1—An increase in millage above the 15 mills, which would require a vote of the people. A levy of 2 and two-thirds mills for the schools was suggested.

2—Or, an increase in assessed valuations of taxable property in the county to bring the county's total assessed valuation up to the valuation established by the state.

The finance problem was outlined to the group by Hagle Quarnstrom, Delta County school superintendent. Walter Peters, superintendent of the Rapid River Rural Agricultural School District, said the suggestion to study plans for additional school-county fin-

The Very Rev. Joseph S. Dickson, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Wm. Kell and Mrs. Barnett Mills have returned home following their attendance at the sessions of the province of the midwest, of the Episcopal Church. The province embraces the work of thirteen dioceses in the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Wedel, warden of the college of preachers and canon of Washington Cathedral, Washington, D. C. in part, speaking on the theme, "The Apostolate of the Laity", canon Wedel stated: "Many thoughtful church leaders are predicting that the churches of the world are moving into the century of the laity. The liturgical movement, in both Catholicism and Protestantism, is winning back for the laity their ancient rights in the church's worship life."

In the long history of the church, it has over and over again faced the danger of a schism between clergy and people. Each order has its distinct calling, but together they are the body of Christ."

The Rev. William H. Nes, professor of homiletics at Seabury-Western Seminary, Evanston, Ill., spoke on the theme of "The Anglican Church and the Ecumenical Movement." Father Nes indicated that the history of the Christian community during the past thousand years has been characterized by its fragmentation into sects and divisions. He expressed the conviction that there is today to be a major turning of the tide in the direction of community. He urged that members of the Epis-coval Church follow the leadership of Bishop Brent and Archbishop Temple, who were the pioneers in the ecumenical movement.

Game Violators To Get Publicity

By JAMES A. O. CROWE

GRAYLING (AP) — Michigan conservation officers Friday instructed to release the names of conservation law violators upon arrest.

The Conservation Commission, meeting at the Higgins Lake training school, issued these instructions contingent on a formal attorney general's opinion that the officers would be on solid legal ground.

Conservation Director G. E. Eddy told the commission that a study had shown that officers in the Upper Peninsula and the northern part of the Lower Peninsula had been following this procedure for years. The practice of withholding names until conviction had been confined to the southern Lower Peninsula.

The issue was raised when a Detroit newspaper was unable to get the names of 10 prominent men convicted of overshooting ducks and baiting a duck marsh.

Eddy apologized to the commission for "putting you on the spot" by announcing before the study that it was commission policy to withhold the names.

Eddy said an informal opinion by subordinates of Atty. Gen. Frank G. Millard had held that officers had to wait to release violators names until a warrant is issued by the court.

Commissioner Joseph P. Rahilly of Newberry said that this would delay the release and was contrary to present practice in the northern range.

Making the motion to release the names on arrest, Rahilly said: "We will go as far as the attorney general will let us."

Increased Profits Cheer Up Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit gains reported by business firms cheer both industry and Wall Street to-day.

The first 30 corporations to report net income for the third quarter show two out of three doing better than a year ago. Combined their earnings after taxes register a 25 per cent increase over their showing in the summer months of 1952.

The first flow of earnings statements — only a handful out of the hundreds to be made in the next few weeks — has helped bolster sentiment on the stock market.

Taken along with assuring statements by a number of company heads as to earnings prospects for the rest of this year and chances for next, the reports may allay some of the gloom that overtook many businessmen during the summer.

Thirty reports are too few, of course, to do more than give a hint of which way the profit winds are blowing. Later, more complete reports could change the picture.

Early reports aren't uniformly bright. Nine of the 30 firms show earnings trailing last year, and two of them operated in the red during July, August and September.

The first 20 include big corposolution of the mystery surrounding his disappearance.

Chicago & North Western ore dock agents and Escanaba Safety Director Glen S. Leonard still hold to the theory that Helgemo may have fallen into a dock pocket and his body carried with iron ore into the hold of one of three boats loaded at the docks early Wednesday.

Shovel Put Away

Yet the Str. Jones and Str. Reiss have by this time unloaded at lower lakes ports and no report has been received of finding Helgemo's body. The third vessel, the Str. LeMoyne, was also expected to be unloaded today at Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

One of the mysterious circumstances connected with Helgemo's disappearance is the fact that his shovel, which he used in clearing ore from the tracks around the tops of the pockets where ore is dumped, was found returned to its proper place in a tool box on No. 6 dock.

This discovery was made Wednesday after Helgemo was reported missing by his wife, who became alarmed when her husband failed to return to his home. Helgemo had been employed on the docks since 1943.

Helgemo's car was found in the parking lot at the dock, his jacket and uneaten lunch still in the automobile.

Search Dock Area

The missing man was last reported seen by Charles O'Neil, who reported the deck scraper was working on the dock while the Str. Jones was loading.

John Chriske, district conservation supervisor, has made an intensive search of the water surrounding the dock area, using the department's small fish patrol boat. He found no trace of the missing man.

Chriske said that he is preparing to resume the search of the water and shore in the vicinity of the docks if Helgemo's body is not found in the hold of any of the three steamers that cleared from the docks Wednesday.

Liske Appointed Traffic Manager Of North Central

Clarence E. Liske, director of North Central Airlines reservations and ticket sales, today was appointed general traffic manager, a newly created position.

Liske will be directly responsible for traffic administration, which includes reservations, ticketing, passenger service, schedules and tariffs, procedure manuals and development of air mail and air express traffic.

Editorials—

Warren's Middle-Road Policy May Be Best Policy For High Court

WHEN President Eisenhower mentioned how the gap further between the law and the nation's life.

Right here the great question arises: what does the new statute square with the fundamental law of the federal or state constitution? To decide his vital issue again and again, we have state and federal supreme courts.

Faced with such a question, justices generally fall into two chief classes—conservative and liberal. The liberal is eager to accommodate to change, ever ready to stretch basic principle to fit new conditions. The conservative sticks more closely to older interpretations, fearing constant stretching may destroy a principle and thus remove a fundamental safeguard of the people.

Both viewpoints are natural, both are represented in all phases of our life. On the U. S. Supreme Court, the final guardian of our freedoms, it seems sensible that these two viewpoints should be held in balance, so that we are neither too slow nor too fast in changing the basic law to make it embrace the new circumstances of living.

What could be sounder, then, than to have a Chief Justice who avoids either extreme, who personifies this very balance? Exercising his highest powers of judgment, he must cast his weight first on one side and then on the other, not in accord with some sort of mathematical equation but as he deems it necessary to preserve the fundamental law yet keep it flexible enough for the life of today.

Far from being beside the point, the argument for Warren as a middle-roader may well prove to be the most significant advanced in his behalf.

Look In The Window

SOME weeks ago the wire services carried a little item from London. Government control of millers and bakers was terminated, and for the first time in 11 years Britons could walk into stores and buy white bread. This marked the end of one more of the endless restrictions the labor government applied to enterprise and which the present government has been eliminating on a step-by-step basis.

Without arguing whether or not such extreme regulations were necessary in England, it is an historical fact that when government becomes the boss, a philosophy of control for the sake of control inevitably sets in. We saw that during the life of the late and unlamented OPA and OPS. Give the average politician and bureaucrat a little power, and he develops an insatiable hunger for more and more power. We didn't reach the point where white bread was denied us. But we did reach the point where both production and distribution were seriously hampered by confused, complex, costly and arbitrary regulations of a thousand and one kinds—and, when that happens, the consumer is always the principal loser in the long run.

Luckily, we are now operating in something resembling a climate of free enterprise once more. The result is that the production of goods of almost every kind is running at record or near record levels. The stores are loaded with attractive wares and competition guarantees that prices are reasonable and profits are low. As a matter of fact, you can see a silent but powerful argument against a controlled economy by just looking into the windows of typical retail stores.

When a poor man expresses his love to a rich girl, she's likely to wind up paying the charges.

Most tiny tots think cake is made merely to provide some place to put frosting.

The lungs of the average man contain about five quarts of air. You can judge for yourself now much of it is hot.

Words, Wit & Wisdom

By William Morris

It was Dr. Samuel Johnson, first of England's great lexicographers, who said "Dictionaries are like watches; the worst is better than none, and the best cannot be expected to go quite true."

Some similar apologia, it would seem, should be invoked by word authorities when, as in the case of a recent column of mine, a keen-eyed reader can justly accuse me of not "going quite true."

The word, "cerebral," I wrote recently, should be pronounced SEH-reh-brul, noting that "I fail to find my authorization for the sen-REE-brul pronunciation in any of the standard dictionaries."

"What," queries my correspondent in Kansas City (Mo.), "do you consider a standard dictionary?" He goes on to note that seh-REE-brul is given in the American College Dictionary—a very fine and scholarly work, indeed. But he fails to note that A. C. D. lists this pronunciation second to SEH-reh-brul, the preferred pronunciation.

Also, and this is very much to the point, neither of the great American unabridged dictionaries (Funk & Wagnalls and Merriam-Webster) enter the seh-REE-brul pronunciation. In dictionaries copyrighted as recently as 1947 this pronunciation is given nowhere. What is happening—as is so often the case—is that the learned lexicographers are slow to recognize a changing pronunciation. While SEH-reh-brul remains the most widely used pronunciation, it can no longer be considered the only "correct" one. In future editions of these dictionaries, this new pronunciation—seh-REE-brul—will have to be recognized and it may in time supplant SEH-reh-brul as the number-one choice of most informed and literate Americans.

And so, my thanks to my Kansas City correspondent for catching me up on a bit of "unorthodox" scholarship.

Gospel's Life-Giving Power

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Here and there in the New Testament, in many places in fact, there are verses or passages that stand out superbly. They offer the concentrated expression of a great fact, a great experience, an exhortation, or an inspirational incentive of encouragement and uplifting power.

Such a verse is John 3:16, with its assertion of God's love for the world, and the gift of His Son. Many passages, especially in Paul's Epistles, are deeply moving in their exhortations. One, where Paul tells how strength can be made perfect in weakness (II Corinthians 12:9) is particularly encouraging for those who are well aware of their weakness, but who lack Paul's inherent strength. Though Paul makes it plain that his strength was more God-given and God-inspired than of any natural endowment.

But here I am concerned chiefly with one brief verse in which is expressed all the reality and power of the Gospel experience, the fact of what belief in Christ and the acceptance of His message of salvation can do for man. It is II Corinthians 5:17: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold all the things are become new."

A marginal translation makes this even stronger. It says, "If any man be in Christ, then is a new creation." It is not only the man who is changed, but he is in a new world. It is a new world in his knowledge of God. It is a new world in his love of truth, and especially a new world in his outlook on life, and in his attitude toward his fellowmen. It is what the Apostle John, formerly a man of intense ambition to be ahead of his fellow disciples (see Matthew 20:20-24), had in mind when he wrote in I John 3:14, "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." It is what observers of Jesus said (Mark 2:12): "We never saw it on this fashion."

What does it mean to be "in Christ"? Scholars say it is as if it referred to the place in which one lives. Christ is the environment of the new man in precisely that sense. "If ye love Me," said Jesus, "Keep My commandments." To live in Christ is to seek the guidance of His spirit and follow His example.

Two things impress me strongly about the verse. One is the limitless nature of the experience. It is not limited to the few, or borne out in the experience of all sorts of favored, but is for "any man." That is men, even of great sinners, who have found the new life.

And the other thing is the clear, effective expression of the nature and meaning of salvation. Too often, and too much, salvation is made a matter of safety and redemption in some experience beyond this life, a being saved from hell, or some future disaster, without much reference to moral and spiritual reality.

I do not discuss the matter of death-bed repentance, or some last-moment event that may assure future salvation. I leave speculation to others. But here the implication and meaning are plain. Salvation is a matter of new life in Christ. It is a moral and spiritual experience of regeneration. What lies beyond this earthly life may be left to God; but God's will and God's provision in Christ and the Gospel is that here and now for each of us there may be a new life and a new creation.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Back in 1948 the farm belt thought it had won once and for all, the battle of government storage for grain. And one reason farmers today are so sore at the Republicans is that this year they've had to fight the storage battle all over again.

It was in 1948 that a Republican-controlled congress passed a provision whereby the Agriculture Department was not "permitted to own, lease or acquire" storage for grain. As a result private grain elevators either hoisted rates or depressed the grain prices they offered farmers, following which an angry farm belt showed what it thought of the Republicans by re-electing Harry Truman.

Last June midwest farmers, who had voted so enthusiastically for Eisenhower, woke up with a shock to find that the man they elected wasn't with them regarding grain storage after all. The shock came at a Des Moines meeting of farm leaders on June 3, when Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse announced there would be no more government storage.

"If the government must resort to buying bins and putting them up to store corn," said the Undersecretary of Agriculture, "we will have to look at them in the future as monuments to the failure of free enterprise."

That afternoon the pro-Eisenhower, staunchly Republican Des Moines Register came out with headlines: "U. S. to quit storing grain." Simultaneously there was a horrendous cry from farm leaders.

Later that day Undersecretary Morse went back before the same meeting and denied his own statement. Even though the statement was in the written text of his speech, he denied making.

"I've heard plenty of official denials," remarked Jim R. Russell, farm editor of the Des Moines Register, "but that's the first time I've heard a man deny his own statement before the same crowd to whom he made the statement."

GRAIN PRICES DROP

The quickness of Morse's denial indicates the wrath of farmer sentiment on this touchy question of storage. However, having reversed the position of the Eisenhower administration regarding grain storage, the Department of Agriculture proceeded to do little about carrying out the reversal. The reversal seemed to be only in name.

At first Secretary Benson authorized 50,000,000 bushels of government corn storage spread over eight states—despite the fact that Iowa's corn crop alone was estimated at 50,000,000 bushels. Later corn storage was increased to 90,000,000 bushels, though the corn storage need for the entire nation was around 250,000,000. This did not include wheat.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department was so far behind in storing wheat that farmers were dumping it on the ground in the arid southwest, with special permission from Secretary Benson. Meanwhile also, Senator Murray of Montana was demanding that corn-storage bins be diverted to Montana to take care of its expected 113,000,000-bushel wheat crop.

Finally and perhaps most important, the effect of inadequate storage was to depress the price of wheat faster and more disastrously than at any time in three years. For the first time since 1950 wheat dropped the full 10-cent limit allowed by the board of trade in one day.

"Inadequacy of storage space for the large new crop," was the reason given by the Journal of Commerce on June 16.

WHY FARMERS NEED STORAGE

The reason why farmers attach so much importance to grain storage is quite simple. To the city dweller the question of grain elevator space or corn cribs would seem either one for free enterprise or else academic.

But the farmer cannot get the benefit of government price supports unless he is able to store his grain. And when he goes to the private grain elevator, its manager can sometimes charge him whatever he wants. For instance, the government support price of wheat last summer was around $2.20 a bushel, and theoretically the government would pay any farmer that amount for his wheat.

But actually many farmers got around $1.60 or $1.70 a bushel. In other words they sometimes took a loss of 80 cents a bushel—because they couldn't store their wheat.

First, they had to get it stored before the government would pay the price support; and second, many private elevator operators, knowing the farmer is in a tight pinch, squeezed him. The operator knows the farmer can't take his wheat or corn anywhere else, knows that the elevator operators have all the storage space sewed up. So he pays the farmer what the traffic will bear—regardless of the support price.

One Air Force expert points out that the borders of the satellite countries are only a little more than 1000 miles from Spain. He says that the Reds now have a plentiful supply of four-engine TU-4 medium bombers—which are copies of the U. S. B-29—and great quantities of the IL-28 light jet bombers which could easily reach Spain from Russian bases.

Russia's recent dramatic progress with nuclear weapons, her development of new, speedy light bombers and the huge number of MIGs which are now in the possession of the Soviet satellite countries, are the chief factors altering the original 1951 plans for U. S. bases in Spain.

Nevertheless, the new bases will be given a vital role in the complex defense plans for Western Europe. They will probably end up being of greater value to naval forces rather than to the air defense, as was originally planned.

But the farmer cannot get the benefit of government price supports unless he is able to store his grain. And when he goes to the private grain elevator, its manager can sometimes charge him whatever he wants. For instance, the government support price of wheat last summer was around $2.20 a bushel, and theoretically the government would pay any farmer that amount for his wheat.

But actually many farmers got around $1.60 or $1.70 a bushel. In other words they sometimes took a loss of 80 cents a bushel—because they couldn't store their wheat.

The operator knows the farmer can't take his wheat or corn anywhere else, knows that the elevator operators have all the storage space sewed up. So he pays the farmer what the traffic will bear—regardless of the support price.

The Air Force is painfully aware of this situation. As a result it's unlikely that any Strategic Air Command A-bomb or H-bomb carriers will be permanently based in Spain. Instead, SAC units will move in and out of these bases for training purposes.

The chief use of the Spanish air bases, as far as strategic bombing goes, will be as auxiliary landing fields. They will also serve as bases for fighters and interceptors which will defend the North African U. S. SAC bases, and as auxiliary bases in case local political trouble denied us the North African bases.

Russia's weapon progress since 1951 makes the North African bases of prime importance today.

Another intended use of the Spanish bases was for numerous units of fighters and interceptors. Their mission would have been air protection for Western ground forces slowly retreating before Red troops. They would have provided ground support as well as air protection in trying to slow Soviet advances.

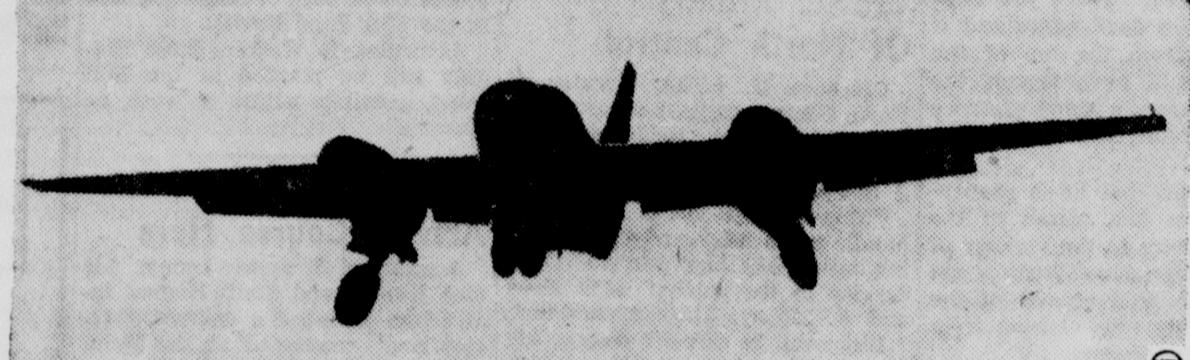

Spain will provide the powerful U. S. Sixth Fleet with excellent permanent bases. The ports of Coruna, Cadiz and Cartagena are possible sites to give the Sixth Fleet command of both the Atlantic and Mediterranean approaches to Southwest Europe.

The success of that mission is now doubtful because of the tremendous number of MIGs in the hands of the Red satellite countries. Although the MIG was proved inferior to the Saber-jet in Korea, an Air Force expert frankly admits that with overwhelming numbers of MIGs against Sabers it would be impossible for the Air Force to guarantee air superiority.

Of Weights And Measures

Russian Air Power Changes U.S. Strategy To Navy Warfare

Further, as soon as the Russians captured airfields close enough to Spain, their MIGs could nullify the effectiveness of Spanish fields through constant harassment.

In view of this plan is to limit Air Force personnel permanently based in Spain to the bare minimum—probably not more than 4000—in highly mobile units, ready to leave in a hurry.

Army strategists have long believed that Spain would provide the perfect place to retreat to and maintain a foothold on the continent if Red troops should sweep Europe. Such a concept has to be changed today, the Air Force believes. Masses of troops retreating through the protective ground barrier of the Pyrenees would be sitting ducks for Red hydrogen and atomic bombs, AF experts believe.

The Air Force is painfully aware of this situation. As a result it's unlikely that any Strategic Air Command A-bomb or H-bomb carriers will be permanently based in Spain. Instead, SAC units will move in and out of these bases for training purposes.

It to pay the ransom was a weighty decision. We gambled and we lost. We had to—but we lost.

—Robert Lederman, go-between in Greenlease kidnap-murder.

If Mr. Greenlease had complied with all the demands (16), he would have paid $1,250,000 in ransom. — Robert Lederman, who handled ransom payoff.

We (U. S.) do not intend to disclose the details of our atomic weapons of any sort, but it is large and increasing steadily. — President Eisenhower.

Good Evening...

By CLINT DUNATHAN

GOLDEN SILENCE—The Michigan Department of Conservation and the Michigan Conservation Commission have been caught with their policy showing. The ridiculous little slip exposed to public gaze has not increased public confidence in the Commission's collective wisdom.

The tempest in printer's ink began when a Detroit newspaper attempted to get the names of 10 men who had been arrested for shooting more ducks than the law permits. The men had been arraigned in justice court, pleaded guilty, and paid fines aggregating $1,700.

Conservation officers told the Detroit newspaper that it was against the policy of the Department of Conservation to release the names of the 10 men.

The court records containing the names of the 10 men were not available to the newspaper because the judge was out of town.

The newspaper came to the obvious conclusion that the conservation officers knew what they were talking about when they said it was against "policy" for them to reveal the names. So they editorially took the Conservation Commission apart for establishing such policy of secrecy.

SURPRISE TO ALL—Conservation Director G. E. Eddy added to the fuel by backing the officers and telling the press that the officers were correct in saying that it was against department policy to give out the names of conservation law violators.

What shocked the conservation officers of Northern Michigan was the news that such a "policy" existed or ever had been in effect.

For in the Upper Peninsula at least the conservation officers at all levels from regional office in Marquette to the officer on patrol have gone all out to cooperate with the newspapers in giving information when it was asked—and sometimes when it was not requested.

Their surprise to learn they have been giving information in defiance of so-called "policy" was equalled only by public indignation over the Conservation Commission's apparent double standard for Northern Michigan and the Monroe County area.

ISABELLA—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Detroit are the parents of a daughter born Oct. 14. The baby weighed 7 pounds and 2 ounces. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Johnson.

Briefs

Mrs. Rose Nepper and Mrs. William Vinette spent Thursday with their sister, Mrs. Al Verschure at Hiawatha.

Mrs. Harvey Sundin and Mrs. Julia Sundin spent Friday in Manitowoc at the Edwin Sundin and John Wood home. They also visited at Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. and Mrs. Nick Bonifas attended the football game at Marquette Friday evening. Also attending were Burton Peterson and Henry Peterson.

Delta Bridge League Annual Pair Tournament Planned

The Delta Bridge League will hold its 18th annual Open Pair Tournament for one year's possession of the Escanaba Daily Press traveling trophy Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7 and 8, at the Elks Club in Escanaba. All interested bridge players from Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan are invited.

The tournament is sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League as club championship event. Master Points will be awarded. Winners and runners-up will receive trophies for permanent possession.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Howe of Escanaba are defending champions.

The Saturday session will start at 8 p. m., EST, and the Sunday session at 1:30 p. m. A smorgasbord dinner will be served Sunday evening after the completion of play.

J. L. Temby is chairman and director and his assistants are Mr. and Mrs. George Conrad of Pellston.

The music of the wedding, "Panis Angelicus," "Ave Maria" and "Mother at Thy Feet We're Kneeling," was sung by Mary Lou Stevenson. She was accompanied by the organist, Kathleen Massey.

The bride wore a gown of white silk taffeta styled with a Chantilly lace bodice and a lace apron that ended in a point at the center of the skirt. The jacket had long tapered sleeves. Her veil of nylon tulle was caught by a beaded pearl tiara. She carried pink roses and white carnations and mums.

The maid of honor, Miss Harriet Williams, cousin of the bride, was attired in a light green taffeta gown. She carried carnations and mums.

George Conrad Jr., was best man for his brother, James Stratton, brother of the bride, and Charles Laser of West Branch ushered.

Following the ceremony, a breakfast was served in the church parlors. In the afternoon, a reception was held at the bride's home.

The newlyweds are living in Detroit.

Doris Gareau Is Bride, Wedding This Morning

Bouquets of mixed fall flowers adorned the altars of Holy Family Church at Flat Rock today for the wedding of Miss Doris Mae Gareau and Raymond Donald Schneider of Milwaukee. The vows were repeated after Father Gerard LaMothe at a 9 a. m. nuptial high mass.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gareau of Gladstone Rte. 1, wore a gown of white lace over satin with a sequin trimmed yoke, Peter Pan collar, long sleeves and a cathedral train. Her veil of imported French illusion was secured by a colonial headpiece of lace edged with rhinestones. She carried white roses with cascades of white baby mums.

Pink satin with a net overskirt was worn by Mrs. Corinne Woldt of Fish Creek, Wis., a sister of the bridegroom. She carried white mums and pompons. The bridesmaid, Miss Alice Mae Theoret of Milwaukee, the bride's cousin, wore sky blue nylon and taffeta with a bolero and peplum and she carried yellow mums and pompons.

Reception at Parish Hall

Rodney Schneider of Madison, Wis., was best man for his brother. They are sons of Emil Schneider of 717 Jefferson St., Stoughton, Wis. Usher was Joseph Gareau of Flat Rock, the bride's brother.

Mrs. Gareau selected a blue dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corset was red roses.

The music of the wedding mass was sung by Holy Family Choir with Mrs. Ernest Roberts, organist.

A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home immediately following the ceremony and a dinner at 12 noon at the Dells Supper Club. A reception for 200 guests will be held at Holy Family Parish Hall followed by a dance this evening at Riverland Ballroom.

Low arrangements of pompons in fall shades are being used for the table centerpieces at the reception.

Honeymoon In South

Following a two weeks' wed-ding trip through the south the newlyweds will live in Milwaukee. The bride, a graduate of St. Joseph's High School, is a typist for the Johnston Co. Her husband is employed by the E. G. Shiner Co., Inc.

Out-of-town guests at the wed-ding were Mr. and Mrs. Emil D. Schneider of Stoughton, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Schneider, Sauk City, Wis., Rodney Schneider, Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Denzel of Stoughton, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Woldt, Fish Creek, Wis., Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bauer, Sturgeon Bay, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Neitzel, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Schneider, Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Flink of Kingsford, Ray Prell and Miss Deon Buck of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. George Miron, Iron Mountain, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Belangia, West Bend, Wis., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dallal, Norway, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Madlinski, LaBranche, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry LaChapelle, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Verbrugge and Mr. and Mrs. Constant Ver-mote of Rock.

Three movies were shown to illustrate these points. A Tale of Two Cities, showed the effects of the atom bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. There were 240,000 persons killed and 163,000 wounded or missing. "Survival Under Atomic Attack," depicted what individuals can do to protect themselves from an atomic blast. "One Plane, One Bomb, One City" described the importance of the Ground Observer Corps in a simultaneous attack on New York City.

Committee Named

In the regular meeting Mrs. Tom Needham, chairman of the program committee named the following members to assist her in program planning: Mrs. Harold Anderson, Mrs. Allen Kidd, and Mrs. George Peterson.

Mrs. Leonard Porath, chairman of the Halloween party committee, announced that plans have been completed for the evening of Oct. 30.

Crooner To Pay Uncle $50,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Haymes' attorney Friday night said the government has agreed to accept half of the crooner's gross earnings until his overdue income tax of about $50,000 is paid in full.

"Mr. Haymes will have to live on the remaining 50 per cent of his income," Atty. David M. said, "and must pay up other debts including alimony on that amount, but he is very grateful for the opportunity to continue working."

Haymes, recently married to actress Rita Hayworth at Las Vegas, Nev., is now singing at the Shamrock Hotel in Houston, Tex. The Internal Revenue Service placed a tax lien on his salary there Wednesday.

On another front today, however, the crooner was less fortunate.

Federal Judge Ernest A. Tolin dismissed his petition which sought to restrain the U. S. Immigration Service from proceeding with deportation hearings against him. The singer, a native of Argentina and not a U. S. citizen, had requested the court to rule that he was not subject to deportation.

He was arrested last spring after returning from a visit with Miss Hayworth in Hawaii. Immigration officials contend he was not entitled to re-enter continental United States.

Student Electrocuted In Football Stunt At Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was electrocuted Friday night during an impromptu football game near his Salt Lake City home.

Police said Kent Matson was one of several youths who took turns climbing a utility pole. According to the game, the youths on the ground would toss a football into the air and the youth on the pole would attempt to kick it.

Police said Matson climbed higher than anyone else, and apparently reached for a wire to brace himself. The wire was charged with 30 thousand volts of electricity.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Repair Man Finds And Loses $100,000

IDAHO, Okla. (AP) — Bill Wakefield, an auto body repair man, will be talking for a long time about the fortune he found and lost Friday.

Unraveling a fender and opening a safe inside, supposedly containing bolts, he was shocked to find dozens of checks which totaled up to $100,000.

How they got there, nobody could say, but the Federal National Bank at Shawnee, more than 100 miles away, was delighted at their recovery. Handing over the rich find, Wakefield sighed, "Easy come, easy go."

Governor Williams No Longer Novice In Political Ring

By JACK L. GREEN

LANSING (AP) — The G. Mennen Williams who relaxes easily against the ropes while waiting for what may be the biggest fight of his career is far removed from the suspicious, aggressive youngster who scrambled his way to the governorship five years ago.

The governor acts like a seasoned, ringwise contender who is ready for his big go with the champ.

To men who have watched him daily for five years, he has come up from an anxious greenhorn to a confident, relaxed, highly-polished political mechanism.

Surf Of Himself

A lot of Republicans may deplore him, may sneer at "Soapy" Williams, the brash boy. But their estimate has not kept pace with the passage of five years and ignores the Williams of today.

The governor is heavier, slower, grayer and — above all — very sure of himself.

He was very unsure of himself five years ago. He probably was sure of his goals then, but not how to get there.

He was beset with advisers — union leaders, party leaders, personal confidants and mere self-seekers. He seemed to be a bit suspicious of all of them. He seemed to test the advice of each against some hidden political intuition, a sense which his best friends and worst enemies now concede does exist in a very real way.

He was highly aggressive, even pugnacious. He picked fights with

College Enrollment Has Upward Trend

CINCINNATI (AP) — A five-year decline in enrollment of full-time students in universities and four-year colleges had been halted and there has been a slight upward trend this fall.

That was the report from Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati and an authority on college enrollments. Dr. Walters makes an enrollment survey each year, giving a report shortly after schools open and more detailed report in December.

His preliminary report, made public today, was based on estimates received from 506 approved colleges and universities.

"The estimated increase of a few percentage points in full-time totals is a consequence of larger freshman classes," he said. "The total of new students now exceeds that of a year ago, just as, in turn, 1952 freshmen had topped the 1951 figure."

Dr. Walters reported, however, that returning Korean war veterans had added to enrollments "only in a fractional measure of what had been anticipated."

"Registrars of both publicly and privately supported institutions typically report 'small increase' in response to our inquiry as to full-time students under the Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952," Dr. Walters said.

"Under this act, the federal government pays directly to the veteran for his education $110 to $130 per month, according to dependents. For a maximum of 36 months.

"Uncle Sam's educational offer did not attract to the campus this fall many Korean veterans," Dr. Walters continued. "They chose rather to take well-paid jobs in industry and business so freely available."

Five Rooms Are Well Planned

Rooms ..... Five
Bedrooms ..... Three
Closets ..... Six
Cubage: House ..... 23,500 ft.
Garage ..... 4,300 ft.
Dimensions ..... 42' x 27'

Typical of the one story homes so popular with today's home builders, "The Barrett," featured today by the Home of the Week Plan Service, contains five well planned rooms.

Measuring 42' x 27', "The Barrett" has a cubage of 23,500 feet. The attached one car garage has a cubage of 4,300 feet. At least an 85 foot lot would be required to build the house and the attached garage. This type of home will look equally attractive in any setting but to most effectively emphasize its charmingly simple architecture it should have a sufficient amount of land on all four sides.

The slight roof overhang at the front of the house provides protection for the front entry and at the same time affords an opportunity for a distinctive planting arrangement under the picture window. This little terrace thus not only adds decorative appeal to the exterior appearance of "The Barrett" but also helps to insure a more attractive view from the living room picture window.

Included in the spacious living room is a dining area which receives pleasant light and good ventilation through the window in the left wall. This area contains ample space for your dining set, the china closet built into the back wall makes an excellent storage place for your china and glass ware. You can have drawers installed in the lower section of the closet and keep your table linens there.

Both regular bedrooms occupy the right wing of "The Barrett."

Milton Kell, Pioneer Of Powers, Recalls Happy Days Of 10¢ Steaks

POWERS — According to Milton Kell, an old time resident of Powers, a business education today and one of 55 years ago is not so different as to curriculum, but there is a great difference as to the prices of tuition, board and room.

Mr. Kell attended a commercial school in Valparaiso, Indiana. At that time the Valparaiso School was considered one of the best schools in the United States with an enrollment of between 6,000 and 7,000 students. His board cost him $1.20 a week. He paid 30 cents for room rent and $1.00 a week for tuition, which greatly differs from what the parents of today are paying even when the students do their own cooking, as they did then.

Mr. Kell was born on a farm near the village of Wilson in 1881. The farm home burned down when he was five days old. He attended a small one room school in the village and after finishing the eighth grade he left for Indiana to finish his education. In looking back into the yesterdays regarding the price of other items, he remembered that while in the implement business with his father, they sold 5 or 6-foot grain binders for $135.00; 4½ foot vertical bar mowers for $50.00 and 300 pound cream separators for $65.00; these had to be fastened to box or block of wood.

Change In Meat Business

He figures that probably the greatest change in this area is in the meat business. During the latter part of 1800 he went in the butcher business with his father. They did not operate a market, but he peddled and sold meat from the wagon. Some days he would sell as much as 500 pounds. Sirloin steak was sold for as low as 10 cents a pound, roast beef for 8 cents and stew meat for 6 cents.

He recalls how one Saturday he called at a farm home and asked the lady of the house if she wanted some meat; she bought a soup bone for 10 cents. On the following Saturday he called at the same home. The lady told him she wanted another soup bone although the last one was still in a kettle on the stove. In those days you did not have to worry about the high cost of living when you could get your week's meat supply for 10 cents.

Miltie, as they called him then, did much butchering for the farmers for which he charged 50 cents each for dressing a beef or a hog.

Opened Hardware Store

He sold meat to the lumber camps. The Mashke Lumber Company operated two saw mills, one at Heathville and the other one down at Gourley. They also had a spur running from Indian Town down to Gourley and they had a steam engine that they used to haul the lumber in car lots to the main line of the C&NW Railway Co. He would drive his meat wagon down as far as Heathville, then after his dinner they would load his meat box on the tender of the engine and would take him down to Gourley. The riding was not very smooth and there were days when the engine would jump the track and there would be a delay of hours.

In 1909 Mr. Kell started in the hardware business, and later took brother Jonathan in business in the livery stable.

In those days nails sold for about 5 cents a pound and an 8" flat mill file sold for 10 cents.

Chicago Cub Fan

Mr. Kell's parents were one of the earliest settlers in this area, coming to this community in 1878. At that time there was only one house in Wilson and very few in Powers and Spalding. There were no roads in those days and when they had to go to the store, the people would walk down the railroad track. Mr. Kell's father made ties and carried them on his back 20 and 30 rods to the railroad track.

Mr. Kell was formerly Laura Hills of Marinette, an outstanding musician but because of illness has been unable to be active, and Mr. Kell is confined to his home with arthritis. Inspite of this old friends and new friends gather at their charming home, drawn there because of the many humorous stories of long ago. At the same time much enthusiasm is spent discussing the ball games of today because Mr. Kell has been scoring nearly all the ball games played by the Chicago Cubs for the past twelve years. He says that is one thing that has never changed with the years because baseball fans battled for their teams just as much in those days as they do today, and the enthusiasm "to take me out to the ball game" was and is no different today. He feels that basically folks are the same, that the real difference lies in the value of the dollar and the opportunities for progress.

JACKSON (P) — American Airlines reopened service Wednesday. It had cut off flights to Jackson two weeks ago due to a damaged runway which was caused by the cave-in of an abandoned mine shaft under the airport.

Swedish Youth, 17, Finds Life Here Interesting

Many Delta County residents came here from the Scandinavian countries, or their parents did, and the trend is still an active one. A recent arrival from Sweden is Stig Bergh, 17, whose mother, Bertha Bergh, came over some time before he did. Stig and his mother live at 800 Lake Shore Drive.

Stig's home in Sweden was in Karlstad, in the state of Västmanland. He described Karlstad as a city of 40,000, situated at the mouth of the Klarälven (Clear River), a big river coming from Norway. The city is closer to Oslo than to Stockholm, and in winter many Swedish people go to the Norwegian capital for the holmenkollen (ski jumps).

Stig sailed from Sweden on the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm and arrived in the United States May 5. His mother and his uncle, Lambert Peterson of 415 S. 8th St., met him at Pier 97 on 57th St., and they drove west in his uncle's car.

Learning English

When he arrived in the United States, Stig knew no English. "I couldn't speak a word—only yes and no and thank you very much." Those few words he learned from American movies, he said. When he went to American movies he would read the subtitles and not listen to what the actors were saying, but a few words sank in anyhow, such as "Thank you" and "Hands up!"

He has found many persons here who speak Swedish. Of these, many were born in the United States, and learned to speak the old-country language from their parents.

Stig is now going to Escanaba Senior High School. In addition to his regular school contacts, John Romstad, English teacher and dramatics coach, is giving him special help in learning English.

Higher Living Standards

Ninety percent of Swedes graduate from school at 15 and go to work, Stig said. He worked in a newspaper print shop 2½ years before he sailed for America.

The young Swede said he came to the United States because of the higher standard of living here. In Sweden, he said, a working man can't make enough to buy a car and a house. The Swedish working man has a bicycle instead of an auto. In the United States, Stig said, everybody seems to have a car, or two or three cars. If the babies could drive they would have cars too, he said with a grin.

Asked what it is like to have Russia as an almost next-door neighbor, Stig said many Swedes are scared of the Eurasian colossus. Workingmen are scared that they'll be slaves, he said.

One thing he admires about the United States, Stig said, is the way people of so many different nationalities get along together here.

Paducah, Ky., was named in honor of Chief Paduka, who reigned over a small tribe of Chickasaw Indians known around the mouth of the Tennessee River as "Paducahs."

Copper-steel brake drums, now available for heavy trucks and buses on the highway, dissipate rapidly the heat of friction created when the brakes are applied, thus assuring faster and surer slowing down and stopping. Their use is expected to greatly decrease highway accidents due to brake failure.

By RALPH WILSE

Twenty-three American soldiers have refused to return to the United States from Korean prisoner-of-war camps, saying they preferred to live under Communism. Why do you suppose they have done this?

William Wells, retort operator at C&NW tie plant, 320, S. 10th St.: "Well — I think they must have been impressed somehow by the other side. I can't understand why anybody would want to live under Communism, can you? . . . when they have lived in this country under our freedoms and everything that we have. Someone has filled them with something. It's propaganda — it must be something of that sort."

Mrs. Modest Hurthibise, housewife, 923 1st Ave. N.: "I don't know. That's kind of a hard question to answer. It's hard to put your finger on something like that. You couldn't understand why an American would want to stay under Communism."

Michael McMartin, works at Harischfeiger, 1012 Washington Ave.: "I know I wouldn't do it. I was over there myself. That is a hard thing to understand. There's no freedom whatsoever in that country, at least compared to the United States. Of course I've never fought against the Chinese. I don't know what they're like. I don't think their policy's any different than that of the North Koreans though."

Rapid River Woman Recalls Covered Wagon Days On Prairies Of Kansas

In a quiet home next door to the Lutheran Church in Rapid River lives a woman who rode herd on cattle on the Kansas prairie of the 1880's.

Mrs. Willna Uebbrick is the woman. "I spent many hours out on the hot prairie herding cattle," Mrs. Uebbrick, who was 85 Oct. 3, and has lived in Rapid River 60 years, said recently while talking of her early experiences.

Besides her own story, Mrs. Uebbrick remembers tales her father told of his early days. In 1830 her father's family, whose name was Hill, left Hillsville, Va., and went to Indiana. Oxen pulled a prairie schooner containing the family's possessions. Mrs. Hill and her youngest children rode in the wagon, and Mrs. Uebbrick's father, then six years old, walked from Virginia to Arcadia, Ind., along side his father, who led the oxen.

The prairie schooner was different from the later covered wagon. Mrs. Uebbrick said, "The sides rose up and out like the sides of a boat." "My grandfather was a blacksmith and he made those wagons himself," Mrs. Uebbrick said.

The Curious Cow

Mrs. Uebbrick's father was jealous of his four-year-old brother, who rode throughout the trip, and everytime he got his brother out of sight of their parents, he threw stones at him, he told Mrs. Uebbrick.

When the family landed at Arcadia, "my grandmother Hill" planted a walnut tree in their yard. Many years later, at a family reunion, "I swung on the limb of that walnut tree," Mrs. Uebbrick recalled; and she owns a cane which her youngest brother carved from its wood.

Her family were wanderers. In wagons they went west again before she was born, from Indiana to Iowa. When Mrs. Uebbrick was 100 her mother and father traded the Iowa farm for a land sight unseen in Kansas, and once more the family moved on. "My brother Ed was 12. He rode horseback all the way," Mrs. Uebbrick said. This brother, Ed Hill, who died last April in Florida, settled in Rapid River before Mrs. Uebbrick did, and became one of its well-known citizens.

Ed rode horseback to guard the family cow. The cow was tied to the back of the wagon and it was feared she might stumble and fall and be dragged behind the wagon before anyone noticed. However, a guard turned out to be unnecessary as the cow walked up alongside the wagon the whole trip. She wanted to see what was going on.

Coyotes And Buffaloes

It took Mrs. Uebbrick's family five weeks to go the 500 miles to Ellsworth, Kan., in their covered wagon. They landed in Ellsworth May 31, 1879.

It was a hilly country, and Mrs. Uebbrick could go up on a hill and see Salina and Abilene in the distance. "Lots of coyotes out there at that time, and the buffaloes," she said. "You'd see tribes of Indians going by." By that time the Indians had been overcome, Mrs. Uebbrick said, and "they never bothered anybody then." Sometimes a passing Indian would come to their door and ask for food.

"Oh it was hot there in the summertime," Mrs. Uebbrick said. At first they lived in tents and in the covered wagon. They dug a basement in the side of a hill, and they lived in that, until they built their house on top of it.

The farmhouse of the farm next to the Hills' farm was so close the two families could call between houses. A family named Uebbrick lived there, and they had a son Charles, who was 16 when 10-year-old Willna Hill arrived in Kansas.

Rapid River Was Bloody

At first, Mrs. Uebbrick said, "I never paid any attention to him and he never paid any attention to me." Then, at a neighbor's house, the first time they ever saw each other to talk to, they were paired in a game of croquet, and won the game. "We always said we won the game all through life," Mrs. Uebbrick remembered. They were married Oct. 18, 1888, in the Methodist Church in Ellsworth, when Mrs. Uebbrick was 20.

True to the family habit of moving on, Mrs. Uebbrick's oldest brother, James Hill, had returned from Kansas to Indiana, and he formed the habit of going to Upper Michigan to hunt. Eventually he moved to the Upper Peninsula, and he continually wrote his family to follow him. Wages were higher here, he told them.

Finally Mrs. Uebbrick's brother Ed and her younger brother joined James.

Their letters were added to his. At last Mrs. Uebbrick's husband

Grogan's Main Army Job Is Ice Figure Skating

By DON DOANE

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany — Pvt. Jimmy Grogan's main job in the U. S. Army is ice figure skating.

This lucky assignment may make Grogan the next amateur figure skating champion of the world.

The tall, handsome youngster from Colorado Springs, Colo., has been the second best in the world the last three years. Now, at 21, he is a good bet to move into the top spot at the world championships in Oslo, Norway, next Feb. 14-20.

Grogan agrees he is "one lucky soldier." You know how it happens so often in the Army. If you're a truck driver in civilian life the Army turns you into a teletype operator, and if you're a teletype operator, they get you driving a truck.

But not Grogan. He was assigned to the U. S. Army military post in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, the beautiful mountain resort in south Germany where thousands of American soldiers go on furlough every week.

He was put to work as a featured performer in the ice show at Garmisch's famed soldier night club, the Casa Carioca. This job of entertaining furloughing soldiers keeps Grogan on the ice six nights a week.

He won't go into the 1954 world championships rusty from lack of practice as he did in the 1953 championships at Davos, Switzerland, last February.

Grogan was generally expected then to mount the throne left vacant when perennial champion Dick Button turned professional. Grogan had been second to Button for years, and had beaten all his chief rivals in previous meetings.

But Alan Jenkins of Cleveland,

Pvt. Jimmy Grogan performs an intricate maneuver in the ice show at Garmisch's famed soldier night club, the Casa Carioca. Grogan, one of America's top figure skaters, is stationed at the U. S. Army post in south Germany.

Ohio, won instead, with Grogan second again.

"I wasn't really in shape at Davos," Grogan says. "I had been in the Army without much chance to skate, and got only 28 days of practice to get ready for the championships. Here I am getting to skate every day, and it looks like the Army is going to release me from the floor show next winter in time to concentrate on my routine for the February championships."

Grogan thinks Jenkins will again be his main rival.

"He's the only one I'm really afraid of," he says.

In the ice show, Grogan does a lot of fancy skating, but throws in a few comedy touches as well. Although much of the ice-show's cast is professional, Grogan's part is strictly amateur. He gets only his regular Army pay. He obtained special permission from both the International Skating Union and the United States Figure Skating Association to appear in the show.

Grogan also does an occasional turn as master of ceremonies in an Army service club floor show, and even does a few songs to his own ukulele accompaniment.

But he still has to take his turn on guard and performs a few other routine military duties, like any other soldier.

"I really like the Army," says Grogan. "I think a tour of Army duty is good for anybody. I didn't like it at first. I was pretty cocky when I came in. But they soon took that out of me, and I haven't had any gigs (demerits for misconduct) for a long time."

Titanium, fourth most common metal in the earth's crust, defied man's efforts to refine it for more than 150 years. The United States produced only 1400 tons in 1952 but has scheduled 22,000 tons for 1955. It is already beginning to find wide application in aircraft and other industries.

PTA Will Purchase Microscopes And Record Players

Lakeside-Central PTA voted to buy two record players with detachable public address systems for use of the two schools at a regular meeting Thursday night in Lakeside School.

The new record players will have three speeds and will replace outmoded equipment now in the schools.

Douglas Harding, school music teacher, and Clifford Cool and Vern Vail formed the committee which studied record players available and made recommendation on purchase of the sound equipment.

The PTA also voted Thursday night to purchase two microscopes for the schools.

During the meeting a Department of Mental Health movie, "Family Circles" was shown and Mrs. James Fyvie led the discussion which followed. Rev. Paul Sobel led group singing and Mrs. Glen Pawley was in charge of a booklet display of materials for PTA parents.

Lakeside-Central this year is awarding $1 to the room with best attendance of parents at PTA meetings. Thursday Central 1st and 2nd grade room and Lakeside 1st and 2nd grade room were tied for best attendance and each received the award. Last year candy was given.

Lunch was served by mothers of Central 1st and 2nd graders with Mrs. Nick Modders as chairman. On the lunch committee were Mesdames Walter Nelson, Robert E. Slinning, E. J. Doyle, and Paul Sobel. Table decorations were centered with fall flowers, fiestaware and copper.

Robert Nelson Named Principal For West Point

Robert Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Nelson has been appointed principal to the United States Military Academy from the 11th Michigan Congressional District, Congressman Victor Knox of Sault Ste. Marie reports.

Of the 15 who took the recent Civil Service examination, Nelson ranked second. He was valedictorian of his class when he graduated in June from Manistique High School.

The Manistique youth, now an engineering student at the University of Michigan, will enter West Point July 1, 1954, if he successfully passes the entrance examination scheduled next March.

Another Manistique youth, John Wedell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wedell, has been named first alternate to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. Also a 1953 honor graduate of MHS. Wedell now is attending Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Sault Ste. Marie.

Wedell is to take entrance examinations in March, 1954, and will be appointed, if the principal is not, to enter Annapolis in July, according to Congressman Knox's report.

City Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Gember, of Milwaukee, visited at the Alvin Nelson home Thursday while touring the Upper Peninsula on their honeymoon. Mrs. Gember is the former Eloise Cunningham and lived here several years ago.

Eugene Swingle has returned home from University Hospital at Ann Arbor. His condition is reported favorable.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Swingle, of Pontiac, have been visiting with relatives in the city this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kasun attended the Manistique-Marquette football game in Marquette Friday night.

Phillip Olsen of Thompson was ticketed by City police Thursday for failure to have his car under control and failure to have an operator's license.

Olsen was the driver of a car which hit the rear of another auto driven by LaVerne Niles, 126 Chippewa Ave., Thursday evening.

The front end, grill and fenders of the Olsen car were damaged and the left fender and spare wheel mount on the Niles car.

Rev. and Mrs. LeRoy Robart will return tonight from Minneapolis, where they have been attending Conference meetings of the Free Methodist Church.

Seventy per cent of the earth's surface is covered by oceans, with an average depth of approximately two miles. If all the common salt in sea water could be extracted, it is estimated there would be enough salt to cover all land areas to a depth of about 110 feet.

Twenty-five percent of the earth's surface is land, with an average depth of about one mile.

George Swingle has returned home from University Hospital at Ann Arbor. His condition is reported favorable.

Charter Revision:*Election Rules, Aid To Industry Sections Will Receive Hearing Oct. 21

Two suggested new sections to the proposed revised charter for the City of Escanaba will be reviewed by the Charter Revision Commission in meeting at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 21, in City Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Briefly the suggested new charter sections are as follows:

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT AND EXPANSION:

The government of the City of Escanaba reserves the power to promote and encourage the development of industry within the City and its trading area. The City shall have the power to acquire lands for industrial development; and to employ such lands in such reasonable manner and fashion as shall permit the encouragement of the development and expansion of industry. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the City government shall expressly have the power to continue and to expand its program of airport development, and to employ the general funds of the City for additional airport facilities within and without the corporate limits of the City; and to make such facilities available to the aviation industry without the necessity of profit to the community, or return of investment, it being declared to be in the public interest that air traffic be encouraged and promoted. In like fashion, the City may encourage increased transportation services by assisting, reasonably, railroads, steamships, bus lines, and other common carriers servicing this community and area. The City further shall have the power to assist groups engaged in the promotion of public highway development throughout the State of Michigan.

Section 3.21. No person, firm, or unincorporated association shall make a payment of money, to any person in connection with a nomination or election to the office of councilman, in any other name than that of the person, firm or unincorporated association who in truth supplies such money; nor shall any person, firm or unincorporated association knowingly receive such payment or enter or cause the same to be entered in his or its accounts or records in another name than that of persons by whom it was actually furnished. All anonymous contributions to political campaigns for the nomination or election of the office of councilman are expressly prohibited.

Section 3.22. No officer, director, stockholder, attorney, agent, or any other person, acting for any corporation or joint stock company, whether incorporated under the laws of this, or any other State or any foreign country, shall pay, give, or lend, or authorize to be paid, given, or lent, any money belonging to such corporation, to any candidate or candidates, or to any political committee formed on behalf of any candidate or candidates for the payment of any election expenses whatever. The provisions of Section 14 of Chapter II of Act 351 of 1925, Public Acts of the State of Michigan are expressly made a part of this Charter with respect to contributions for the nomination or election of candidates to the office of councilman.

Section 3.23. Each candidate for nomination and election to the office of councilman may appoint, at the time of filing his declaration, a campaign treasurer whose name and address shall be filed at the office of the city clerk with the declaration of intention. Such campaign treasurer shall serve, ex officio, as the treasurer of any and all political committees formed to further the candidacy of the said candidate. The said treasurer shall, within five days after the primary election, and within five days after the general election, file a true and accurate account, under oath, setting forth each and every sum of money disbursed by him for nomination or election expenses, on behalf of the said candidate for the office of councilman; and further shall file a statement setting forth truthfully each and every sum of money received by him, the date of such receipt and the name of the person from whom received. Such statement shall also set forth, accurately, the unpaid debts and obligations, if any, of such candidate or committees sponsoring the candidate's election or nomination as the case may be.

Section 3.24. No campaign committee shall receive any sum or make any expenditure or incur any obligation in connection with the candidacy of a candidate for the nomination or election to the office of city councilman unless such receipt or disbursement be expressly authorized, in writing, by the candidate, or by his campaign treasurer. In the event of violation of this provision, however, it shall be presumed that the candidate has, in fact, authorized receipts of expenditures, not so expressly authorized; and the candidate shall have the burden of providing, that any sums were received, expenditures made, or indebtedness incurred without his express or implied approval.

Section 3.25. After the election for the office of councilman, when the candidate campaign accounts have been filed, they shall be audited by the comptroller of the city of Escanaba to determine compliance with the provisions of this Chapter. By filing his declaration, the candidate specifically shall authorize the said controller to demand the production of all records and financial transactions.

Section 3.26. The council shall be the judge of the qualifications of its own members; and before the organization meeting on the first Monday following the election, shall refuse to seat any presumptively elected candidate if it shall appear that the provisions of this Chapter shall have been violated by him or in his behalf.

Section 3.27. The council shall have the power to make such rules and regulations as it deems necessary for the government of the City of Escanaba.

Section 3.28. The council shall have the power to make such rules and regulations as it deems necessary for the government of the City of Escanaba.
